EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

1. The subject-matter of claim 1 fulfils the requirements of Art. 33 PCT for the following reasons.

The closest prior art is considered to be a known method of forming a differential housing comprising an outer housing and a separate ring gear (see EP-A-0979959 (D2)).

The aim of the invention is to simplify the method by reducing the number of forming and machining operations.

The problem is solved by (a) providing a housing blank having an annular rim and (b) with the blank supported by a rotating tool, forming teeth on the annular rim.

The available prior art discloses also differential housings comprising an integral ring gear: see JP-A-62132055 (D1), GB-A-786593 (D3). However, these documents are silent about the production method. D1 mentions merely the provision of a forged integral housing; it is to suppose that this forged housing either comprises a ring which thereafter is machined by a common gear-cutting machine or an already forged toothed ring. D3 does not say anything about a manufacturing method. Therefore, the available literature does not give any hint to the skilled person to arrive at the claimed method.

2. Claims 2 to 12 are dependent on claim 1 and as such fulfil the requirements of Art. 33 PCT.
